MPHIS APPEAL.

THURSDAY : : DECEMBER 3, 1885 A MODEL PRESIDENT. Grover Cleveland will have been Pres dent of the United States nine months at noon to-morrow; and all just men concur in the opinion that his administration has been eminently successful. In urging his nomination Gen. Bragg said: The people love him for the enemies he has made," and they love him still more for the enemies he has made in the faithful discharge of his official duties. The people understand the motives which induce Stephen W. Dorsey and his gang to vilify the President, and he is endeared to them in proportion to the amount of abuse he receives from such a source. Honest in his purposes, with the courage to assert his convictions the President has antagonized many private interests, and as a matter of course he is abused. He tells the ocean steam companies that they can no longer rob the government: the cattle barons that they must surrender the lands they have stolen and pull down their tences; that the defaulting railroads must abandon the lands they have for feited; that the public domain must be free to actual settlers, and that the Indians must not be molested in their reservations. Among monopolies that have suffered by the President's belief that public office is a public trust is the express company, which is howling because the government is taking from i fat contracts, by transporting coin in a government vessel in utter disregard o the old custom of expressing it as freight. And another victim is the silver bullion ring, which conspired to force the goverament to pay higher prices for the metal of the standard dollar than i brought in the open market. Cleveland, in his watchful vigilance, saw that the silver men had been swindling the great and glaring. This paper finds the government by an agreement not to underbid each other, and thus fixing the price above the market rate, and the government refused to make the customary purchase. And now the silver ring, like Dorsey, the steamship companies, the land grabbers, the express company, is fully convinced that this is a "Confederate brigadier-general" administration, and an enemy to American enterprise and industry. President Cleveland is standing by his pledges with a courage that is sublime. He is indeed, a model President. By precept and practice he is vitalizing the principle that public office is a public trust not a reward for party services, and he is conducting the business affairs of the nation on a strictly business basis. The people are sustaining Mr. Cleve-And how could it be otherwise It would be a strange commentary on the value of Democratic professions and promises were the President, after being which threatens the welfare of the com-for Federal interference, which would lead to the proclamation of martial law and the appointment of a military governor. This plan has been pursued in other States. It is believed in North Mexico that the prime mover at present in the management of public affairs in the republic of Mexico is Senor Romero Robio, Secretary Of State, and father-in-law of President Disz. He is regarded as the power behind the throne, and it is almost conceded in covernment circles that he will be the bills the would use them as vehicles of discussion: "The Progress that Has Been Made in Each State During the Last Year in Advancing the Efficiency of Its National Guard," "The Relative Merits of Regimental and municipal administration of Nuevo Leon have until lately been in the hands of the followers of Gonzales. Several weeks ago every Federal official friendly to Gonzales was dismissed, and administration men were appointed in their stead.

Before the adjournment of the following subjects are announced for discussion: "The Progress that Has Been Made in Each State During the Last Year in Advancing the Efficiency of Its National Guard," "The Relative Merits of Regimental or Brigade Camps, and Whether It Is Best to Hold Them Near Large Cities," and "Suggestions in Regard to do nothing but handle appropriations. "When we first began our inquiry," said he to your correspondent the other evening, "I made up my mind upon certain points and felt that I had a correct solution of the whole matter. Then I would selection as giving one Senator too much meet some experienced and practical railtion of the whole matter. Then I would meet some experienced and practical railroad man, and in about ten minutes' talk honor. Besides, the Committee on Rules, which has already selected a caterer for he would take all the underpinning out of my legislative structure and I'd feel all at sea again. Then I'd start to build and about the time I fell that I saw a proper course to be adopted in settling the question as giving one senator too much honor. Besides, the Committee on Rules, which has already selected a caterer for the Senate, is arrayed sgainst Mr. Edmunds for fear that he will assume charge of the matter and out the cold water Boniface from Maine. To give you an idea of the complexities of the question, take, for West Shore lines. What is to be done in the way of legislation for them? One of the roads was built and paid a good percentage on the investment. Some capitalists, thinking they had too good a thing of it, on the one road would have been sufficient to carry all the passengers and freight that it will be called upon to handle for senefit to the country at large is concerned, the money that went into the second line in October, 1881, when the Senate met might have been dumped into the Atantic ocean. But the two roads lie there, and if the State wishes to allow a company crats had a majority and elected Mr. Bay and if the State wishes to allow a company to run a third there would be nothing to prevent it so doing. You can't legislate that roads should clear a certain per cent. Only, for the fact is that one of these roads is losing money and bankruptcy is staring it in the face. The road last built is actually carrying passengers and freights for rates not sufficient to pay the investors anything at all. Then some roads run through country of such character that the building and running will cost twice as much as March he resigned the office of President. and running will cost twice as much as some other road competing with it. The whole subject is a bunch of complexity, and as the interest of railroads is such a term not expring until March 4, 1887. In whole wealth of the country, any legisla-tion affecting their interests must be very cautions. The rates cannot be fixed by cautions. The rates cannot be fixed by legislation. What can be done is to say that roads shall publish their rates and sick to them until they are changed by due notice being given. This will tend to break up railroad wars and will be bese-ficial to the companies as well as to the gan can be sworn in before the election o patrons. Then the practice of companies charging in many cases more for the short haul than for the long haul must be prohibited, so that in no case the aggregate rate for the long haul shall be less than
